BADLY WOUNDS
SALOON ROBBER.

Oliver Flory Resists When Forced to Stand With Raised Hands and Be Searched.

LINED PATRONS AGAINST WALL.

Proprietor Supports Flory After Latter Started to Shoot at the Footpads With a Small Revolver.

Oliver Flory of No. 321 Tyler street is the hero of the battle between footpads who robbed Daniel O'Brien's saloon, early yesterday morning, and patrons, who were lined against the wall, to wait their turn to be deprived of money and valuables. The police have learned that the bullet which wounded Joseph Smith, one of the footpads, was fired by Flory, who began the fight by discharging a small weapon. O'Brien joined the fight with a large revolver and sent several bullets through Smith's coat, but failed to strike his body. Smith is at the City Hospital, a prisoner, but so far has not been identified by detectives as a local criminal. He refuses to give the police information as to his identity.

Thomas Timmer, said to have been recently released from the Penitentiary, was arrested shortly after making his escape from the saloon and has been identified as Smith's companion. The money—$24.50—taken from O'Brien's cash register has not been recovered.

Smith and Timmer, it is charged, came into the saloon, which is situated at Ninth and Tyler streets, about 1:30 yesterday morning, and with drawn revolvers ordered O'Brien, who was behind the bar, to raise his hands.

Compelling the men to stand in a row along the wall, the robbers then turned to the bar to take the contents of the register.

Before Smith could rifle any one's pockets Flory drew his revolver and fired. The resistance was so unexpected that the robbers were disconcerted, and one, said to have been Timmer, retreated to the door. Smith tried to follow, but was shot by Flory. He fell to the floor and surrendered.

Patrolman Lynch, who came into the side entrance of the saloon just as Timmer left the place, recognized the latter and gave chase. Flory and O'Brien disarmed Smith and called an ambulance.

JEALOUS ITALIANS WITH STILETTOS MURDER YOUNG MAN WHO PROTECTS WOMEN FROM DRUNKARDS ON "DAGO HILL."

Lawrence Fahle and Matthew Walsh Respond to Appeals of Mrs. Bessie Meadows and Mrs. Elizabeth Miller to Rescue Them—With Cry of "Americanos" the Italians Knock Walsh Down, but He Escapes After Dropping Hat and Revolver—Fahle Stabbed in the Back While Women Run—After Receiving Knife Wound He Gives Battle Until One of the Crowd Kills Him With Walsh's Pistol—Carlos Milan, Known as "Frenchie," Is Held by the Police—Fahle's Mutilated Body Is Found on King's Highway at Early Hour—Dozens of Gashes Inflicted With Stilettos.

WHILE RESPONDING TO THE APPEAL OF MRS. BESSIE MEADOWS AND MRS. ELIZABETH MILLER FOR PROTECTION FROM A CROWD OF INTOXICATED ITALIANS, LAWRENCE FAHLE WAS MURDERED, HIS COMPANION, MATTHEW WALSH, ESCAPING.

In jealous rage, a band of intoxicated Italians, armed with stilettoes, on their way home from a dance on "Dago Hill" yesterday morning, murdered Lawrence Fahle of No. 3321 Botanical avenue, who had gallantly offered protection to two women who had been in company with the Italians and who had appealed to him for aid.

Fahle's mutilated body was found at 6 o'clock at a spot on the east side of King's Highway boulevard about 200 feet north of the Missouri Pacific Railroad tracks, where evidences of a terrible struggle were apparent.

The body was found by John O'Brien of No. 454A Swan avenue, a watchman for the Missouri-Pacific Railway, who notified Patrolman John F. Coughlin of the Seventh District. The body was removed to the morgue, where it lay for two hours unidentified.

While attending church service the brothers and sisters of Fahle learned that a man had been found dead near King's Highway and Manchester avenue, and, fearing for their brother, who had not returned home during the night, Frank Fahle went to the morgue, where he identified the body.

Up to this time the police had not found a clue to the manner in which young Fahle had met his death, but it had been in the company of Matthew Walsh of No. 1321 Kennett place, an engineer at the Hydraulic Press Brick Company, who had attended a dance with Fahle at Garibaldi Hall, on Shaw avenue, "Dago Hill."

Walsh was placed under arrest because his hat was found at the scene of the murder. He told the police of the episode of the women; how the Italians had attacked him and Fahle, and how he escaped their wrath by running, believing that Fahle had done the same thing.

Upon the statement of Walsh the police arrested Mrs. Bessie Meadows of No. 2702 Eugene street, and Mrs. Elizabeth Miller of No. 2315 Walnut street, the women over whom the tragedy occurred. Both were found at the home of Mrs. Bessie Meadows, and when taken to the Seventh District Police Station their statements tallied exactly with the statement of Walsh. The women are being held for the coroner.

STABBED IN BACK BY ONE OF TEN ITALIANS.
The killing was a virtual mobbing, as about ten Italians are said to have taken part in the fight against Fahle and Walsh. The dead man's body at the morgue displayed evidences of hate and vindictiveness.

A stab wound in the back, inflicted with a stiletto, showed plainly that Fahle had been taken unawares by an unseen foe. A bullet wound in the right temple, the most serious of his injuries, in all probability caused death, and is believed to have been inflicted after Fahle fell.

The dead man was kicked and beaten into an almost unrecognizable mass. His body was covered with bruises and contusions inflicted by blunt instruments.

Through descriptions given by the women to the police, three Italians are known to have participated in the affray. About fifteen men were rounded up during the day, but none was positively identified as being present at the time of the killing except Carlos Milan, known as "Frenchie."

Milan was arrested on "Dago Hill" about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but as he was unable to talk English, but little information could be gotten from him.

According to Walsh, he, in company with Fahle, had started from Garibaldi Hall to go home shortly before 2 o'clock. On King's highway, near McRea avenue, they noticed a crowd of Italians standing on the sidewalk. With them were Mrs. Meadows and Mrs. Miller. The women, apparently, were trying to leave the Italian party, all of whom were inclined to be noisy and boisterous.

As Walsh and Fahle approached, it is said, Mrs. Meadows appealed to them for protection.

"Won't you kindly escort us to the street car," she said, "we are afraid of these Italians."

Fahle answered: "Yes, come on; we are going that way ourselves," and with that the quartet started to cross the Missouri Pacific Railway tracks.

The Italians at first did not know what to make of this unexpected move on the part of the women, and for several seconds stood looking after them and their escorts and jabbering in their native tongue.

ASSASSIN'S SIGNAL IS "AMERICANOS."
One of their number, a man of rather large stature, seemed to be the ring-leader, and at his command the rest of the band started to follow.

Fahle and Walsh, however, did not pay much attention to them.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Washington, Dec. 6.—South Carolina politicians and others who have been trying to prevent the confirmation of the appointment of Doctor Crum, the negro collector of Customs at Charleston, are much interested in the charges which have been brought against him, to the effect that he is running an industrial insurance company advertised as an incorporated organization, but for which articles of incorporation have never been taken out.

A. S. Berry, another negro, living in Charleston, who was a former partner of Doctor Crum in the insurance business, was instrumental in bringing the facts to light, and the case has now been turned over to the Attorney General of South Carolina, to ascertain if Doctor Crum is liable to criminal action.

While it is not fully determined that any action can be taken against him, the opponents of Doctor Crum feel that the circumstances will greatly strengthen their side of the controversy.

The business of the company of which Crum is president, is conducted entirely among negroes, who are solicited to take out insurance in small amounts and to pay the premium in sums of 25 or 50 cents to collectors, who will call every week.

It is charged that these companies make big profits by questionable methods; for instance, by instructing their collectors not to call on a patron when he seems to be likely to die. His policy thus lapses and the company is released from any payments, in case the patron's state of health fulfills expectations.

Doctor Crum and Mr. Berry were partners in such a company until recently when they had a disagreement and separated, dividing the business and each continuing to run a company.

It is said that the collectors for Crum's company use his name to good advantage in securing business among the negroes and, while all the printed matter of the company speaks of it as "incorporated," it was discovered at the State capital that articles never had been taken out.

Twenty Revolvers Stolen.

Twenty revolvers, valued at $250, were stolen from the warehouse of the Florida Tag Company, No. 105 North Eighth street, yesterday afternoon. BEGGED TO SAVE HIS FOOT.

Boy's Limb Crushed by Olive Street Car.

Louis Ginsberg, 14 years old, was struck by an Olive street car yesterday afternoon at the entrance to the World's Fair grounds and his leg cut off by the wheels of the car.

Transit Company physicians amputated his foot a few inches above the ankle.

His parents, who live at No. 194 South Broadway, had not been notified that their son had met with an accident. The child lay on a cot in the City Hospital and begged the doctors not to cut his foot off, and that they bring his mother to him.

Ginsberg has been employed by Salvatore & Stewart as errand boy. He does not know that his foot has been amputated. The wheels of the car left only a strip of skin for the doctors to cut to complete the amputation.

The boy says that he did not intend to board the car that hit him, but that he was crossing the track, supposing that the car would slow up to take the passengers who were waiting for the motorcar to part on extra speed, knocking him down.

Cutath of nose and throat immediately relieved and ultimately cured by the use of "Euro-Formalin." (Elmer & Amend.)
